DANNY MILANO liked his new job. It was different than it had been in the Navy machine shop for the last four years. Busier; and for Danny that meant better. Free time had always been a problem. Except for the six months in Singapore when he'd spent every free minute at the tattoo parlor, leisure time meant too much liquor and too many brawls. And, while he won more often than he lost, Dan preferred to think of himself as a lover rather than a fighter. A nice sweet ass was meant for fucking not kicking.

BUCK WILLIAMS didn't mind the overtime work that had come up that Saturday because he knew he'd be alone in the factory with the new man in the motor repair department. He remembered the way his asshole had throbbed the day the guy had been hired. The sexy hooded eyes; the dark, sharp, sensual Italian features; and the myriad variety of tattoos that he'd glimpsed all spelled stud to Buck and had had him in heat for two weeks now. And today he planned to give that tooler's tool a workout.
